

Employment Orientation

---

Each newly hired staff member must be familiar with the duties, responsibilities, personnel policies, procedures, and fringe benefits explained in this Handbook and other University documents. New employees must also understand what is required of their job performance, as delineated in position descriptions, letters of appointment or other pertinent documents.