The Act provides students the right to inspect and review education records within 45 days of the day the University receives a request for access. The student also has the right to seek to amend those records and the right to limit disclosure of information from the records. The intent of the legislation is to protect the rights of students and to ensure the privacy and accuracy of education records.

The University discloses education records without a student's prior written consent under the FERPA exception for disclosure to school officials with a legitimate educational interest as follows:

- A school official is a person employed by the University in an administrative, supervisory, academic, research, or support staff position (including law enforcement personnel and health staff); a person or company with whom the University has contracted (such as an attorney, auditor, collection agent, degree conferral agent, document managing agent, and placement sites for internship, clinical, or similar student work/study opportunities); a person serving on the Board of Trustees; a student serving on an official committee, such as a disciplinary or grievance committee, and volunteers or other outside parties to whom the University has outsourced institutional services or functions that it would otherwise use employees to perform. A school official has a legitimate educational interest if the official needs to review an education record in order to fulfill his or her professional responsibilities for the University.
- As allowed within FERPA guidelines, the University may disclose education records without consent to officials of another school, upon request, in which a student seeks or intends to enroll.
- The University may disclose without a student's prior written consent under FERPA exceptions for judicial orders and subpoenas; information in accordance with the Patriot Act, Clery Act and the Campus Sex Crimes Prevention Act; and to appropriate parties in connection with an emergency or if the information is necessary to protect the health or safety of the student or other individuals.
